

If this proposed system uses HF frequencies that overlap the amateur HF frequencies, there is no way they can keep the power low enough to prevent enormous interference to these users or any others in close proximity to the power lines. This is not a good idea. It is so bad that I can't believe it is receiving support from anyone other than those that stand to profit from it.